CENTRE HALL "DOCTOR" FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Information by High School Student Implicates Another.

BOTH FURNISHED BAIL

"Doctor" Leslie Jacob, of Centre Hall, and John Reish, of Pottery Mills, a student in the Centre Hall High School, each furnished bail for $2,500 for their appearance in court after being arraigned on a serious charge before Kline Woodruff, justice of the peace, in Bellefonte, on Monday morning.

The information was made by Ethel Zettie, 18 years old, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Zettie, of Pottery Mills. Miss Zettie is also a student in the Centre Hall High School. The information charges Jacob and the young student with an attempt at an illegal operation on Sept. 10 and after. At the hearing, testimony tended to show that Jacob had several times made illegal attempts, as charged, using pills, oil of cloves and instruments, without success. Both of the principals in the case have secured attorneys to represent them in court.

Jacob was before Judge Quigley several years ago on information made by Dr. Seibert, for the Centre County Medical Association, charging him with practicing without a state certificate. At that time he paid a fine of $500 and costs. The judge at that time warned him of the seriousness of his offense.

NEW PASTOR CHOSEN

Presbyterians Extend Call to Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Danville.

At a congregational meeting of the Bellefonte Presbyterian church last Sunday morning, it was voted to extend a call to Rev. W. C. Thompson, of Danville. William B. Rankin was delegated to convey word of the action taken to Mr. Thompson. It is understood that the salary is to be $2,700, with house rent. The Presbyterians have rented the home on East Linn Street occupied until recently as the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. Thompson a short time ago preached to the local Presbyterian congregation, on which occasion he made a most favorable impression. He is at present pastor of the Grove Presbyterian church at Danville, where Rev. Dr. McKinney preached until a few years prior to his coming to Bellefonte.

Riot at Western Penitentiary.

Two prison guards were killed and a number of prisoners were more or less seriously injured in a riot staged at the Western penitentiary at Pittsburgh on Monday. Several of the convicts, alleged bad men received a few months ago from the Eastern penitentiary at Philadelphia, secured some dynamite and used it to blast their way to freedom. The blast rocked the buildings in the vicinity of the institution and damaged the prison wall. As the convicts rushed to the opening in the wall, the two guards interfered, were disarmed and shot. Other officers came to their assistance and a riot call was sent to Pittsburgh. With augmented forces, the convicts were slowly overpowered and none escaped, the disturbance being quelled in about one hour. Warden Egan immediately called a meeting of the prison board to consider punishment for the prisoners who were leaders in the revolt. A convict named Nolan, recently received from the Eastern penitentiary, was turned over to the Pittsburgh homicide squad for questioning after he confessed taking part in the killing of the officers.

Bids on Highway Improvement.

Bids for improvement on 92 miles of state highway, including sections of the William Penn highway, will be opened at the highway department office in Harrisburg on March 6 and 7. It was announced this week. Among the counties in which projects covered by the bills will be located are Centre, Clearfield and Blair. The project in Centre County is the rebuilding and paving of Allen street, in State College borough.

Plan for Big Auto Show.

The committee on arrangements for the annual Centre County Automobile Show to be held in the armory in Bellefonte on March 12-15 is busy planning for the best show to be held thus far. The committee members are busy with preliminary arrangements and considering entertainment features. Decorations are also being given special consideration at this time.

STONE THROWING AFFAIR

Very Unusual Attack Made at J. H. Lutz Home.

"The most unusual thing I ever heard tell of," declared Sheriff Dick Taylor, when asked about a recent stone throwing affair at Jacksonville, which has occasioned wide-spread comment. The Sheriff and his assistant, John Garis, got a plenty of excitement out of the affair, on Monday of last week, when they went to Jacksonville in response to a message stating that a crowd of 19 young men were throwing stones at the dwelling and tenant house on the J. H. Lutz farm. The tale is so interesting and so unusual that what was gleaned of the happenings is narrated as follows:

The dwelling house on the farm has been occupied since last March by Mr. and Mrs. Miles Meckley, the latter a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lutz, who at that time moved out of the dwelling house into the tenant house, exchanging with the younger folks. The farm is known as one of the largest and most fertile in the district.

On Saturday evening, Feb. 2nd, Mr. Meckley came to town with a neighbor. During his absence, his wife and one of the Meckley children, returning from the house after doing some chores at the barn, were stoned. The same evening Mrs. Lutz was stoned and a rock the size of a man's fist was thrown so near her head that it struck the bonnet she was wearing.

That same evening and also Sunday evening, from 7 o'clock until around 11 o'clock, both houses were stoned at intervals and both dwellings were damaged while the lives of the members of the families were placed in much danger. It seemed so unusual an occurrence that the matter was reported to District Attorney Arthur C. Dale, who advised Mr. Meckley to inform Sheriff Taylor.

Mr. Garis was then sent to the place on Monday evening to investigate. He returned to Bellefonte after looking the situation over and, accompanied by the Sheriff, returned to the farm house late on Monday night.

Familiar with tactics used in the late war, the sheriff and his assistant used one of the practical methods of discovering the whereabouts of the stone throwers as they had learned it in France. The result was that they spotted the men and Garis blinded one of the leaders with a flashlight.

Garis said, "As soon as I flashed the light on his face, he drew a shotgun on me. He had the gun concealed by his side while he was carrying out his dastardly program. I think he meant to kill me, but Dick was back of him and soon wrenched the gun from him. Stones were thrown freely and I was hit on the leg by a large rock. Sheriff Taylor told it to those fellows, right there, and it seems they have stopped throwing stones, but if there is any more trouble we know who to go after."

After reading the entire story, Sheriff Taylor said, "You have it correct, so far as I know. It was a trying moment when that fellow went to level the gun at Garis, but we think he has learned his lesson and think his associates will understand now that no further such outrages will be tolerated. Go ahead and use it, if you want to."

BARRED FROM COLLEGE

Erie Youth Refused to Have Military Training.

Lloyd Dieffenbacher, of Erie, a student in the Pennsylvania State College, has been barred from the institution because he refused to comply with the military training program at Penn State. It is said that the young man is studying for the ministry. In a letter to the administrative council of the college, Dieffenbacher said:

"As a professing Christian and as a candidate for the gospel ministry, I find it increasingly difficult to reconcile this evident principle of the love of Christ Jesus with modern methods of aggressive warfare."

Held for Court.

George P. Gable, who was placed in jail last week charged with impersonating an officer of the law, was given a hearing before J. M. Keichline, justice of the peace, on last Thursday afternoon. In default of bail in the sum of $1,000, he is being held for appearance in court.

ESCAPED CONVICT FROM FLORIDA IN JAIL HERE

Caught in State College After Robbing Students.

HAD WOMAN WITH HIM

Wayne Cobb alias James Boyd, wanted by the authorities in the state of Florida for escaping from the penitentiary there, was taken into custody at State College and placed in the jail in Bellefonte on Saturday.

Cobb, it is said, had a woman with him, but she has evidently made a getaway. It is alleged he is an escaped convict from Florida and that he succeeded in committing robberies at Frankling and Marshall college and at Bucknell.

He was arrested at State College by Police Officer Mingle, of that borough. It is alleged he gained entrance to the Sigma Nu fraternity on West College Ave. by posing as a friend of one of the students and that he visited rooms in the fraternity and stole an aggregate of about $52 from pockets of students' clothing. The students missed the money and investigation brought out the fact that the stranger had been in the building. Information was made at once and Officer Mingle had the morning bar, which was in charge of Elmer Rocky, surrounded by students. He went into the bus and found Cobb, whom he placed under arrest. The students recognized him as the one who had looted their pockets.

Prom pictures and information in possession of local officers, it was learned that Cobb was wanted in Florida as an escaped convict. He was given a hearing before Kline Woodruff, of Bellefonte, and was held for court in default of bail in the sum of $2,000.

MARRIED 58 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, of the Forge, Will Celebrate.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Miller, who reside at the Forge, near Bellefonte, will celebrate their 58th wedding anniversary on Monday with a special dinner at which their children and families, and a few friends, including Samuel Shirk, Mrs. Henry Young and Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, and Mrs. Della Miller, widow of Lewis Miller, and family, will attend.

Mrs. Miller's maiden name was Anna Mary Culp. She and Mr. Miller were married on Feb. 17, 1866, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, on Pine street, by Rev. Swan, at that time minister of the Methodist church at this place. About three weeks after the wedding, Rev. Swan died suddenly in Bellefonte.

All of their married life has been spent in this vicinity. Their union was blessed with fifteen children, six of whom are living as follows: James, Charles, Caleb and Russell, of Bellefonte; Mrs. William Bathurst, of Altoona; and Robert, of Buffalo, N. Y. All of the children, with their families, excepting Robert, are expected at the reunion to be held on Monday. The honored couple also have 36 grandchildren and 26 great grandchildren.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Miller are enjoying good health. They are about the same age, Mr. Miller approaching his 76th birthday in May and Mrs. Miller will be 76 in September. Mr. Miller is a veteran of the Civil war and is one of the few old iron workers residing in this vicinity, having been employed for many years in the forge department when the Valentine furnace, later known as the Nittany furnace, was operated.

Accident Near Monument.

Another accident occurred last week on the road between Beech Creek and Monument, where the big auto truck of William Parker, of Bellefonte, recently went over the embankment at a dangerous place. The wagon of Thomas B. Dunlap, loaded with heavy freshly sawed lumber from the Merrill Bickford planing mill, skidded on the ice and went over the embankment. Mr. Dunlap escaped injury by jumping. The horses managed to retain their footing and kept the wagon at the edge of the road, the binding chain breaking and causing the lumber to slide from the wagon into the water from an inlet of the creek. The wagon was badly damaged and will be expensive to repair.

Sheridan Troop Organizer Dead.

Captain Thomas M. Fleck, organizer of the famous Blair County cavalry unit in the Pennsylvania National Guard, died on Sunday morning at his home in Sinking valley, aged 89 years.

NUDE BODY OF INFANT FOUND AT SEWAGE PLANT

Coroner's Inquest Fails to Establish Responsibility.

MYSTERY AT COLLEGE

The finding of the nude body of an infant child at the sewage disposal at State College indicates that very recently a shocking crime was perpetrated in the college town. A Coroner's jury, at an inquest held at the office of J. J. Dreese, on Friday afternoon, failed to establish responsibility for the crime.

Joseph L. Swift, of 315 West Foster avenue, State College, caretaker of the State College disposal plant, gave the only testimony taken at the Coroner's inquest. He told of finding the body about 11:30 o'clock while in performance of his duties on Friday. He said the nude body was found near the sludge discharge pipe from the tank and that no one was present but himself.

The account filed at the office of Probationary Roy Wilkinson is as follows:

"At an inquest held this 8th day of February, A. D. 1924, in College Township, Centre County, by J. J. Dreese, a justice of the peace in and for said county, acting as deputy coroner of the county, over the body of an infant found on the grounds of the State College sewage disposal plant, in said College Township, the following jurors were sworn to view the body of said infant and hear the testimony: Jacob Krumpholtz, D. W. Evans, John Garman, Charles Robb, Charles Jordan and Geo. Lutz. All the above were sworn according to law and heard the testimony submitted and find the facts to be as follows:

"We, the above sworn jurors do find that the infant in question met its death at the hands of some woman about to become a mother or by malpractice by hands of some person or persons unknown to us."

MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith Will Celebrate on the 18th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith will observe their Golden Wedding anniversary on next Monday when a delicious supper will be served at their cosy home on North Spring street and their children, with their families, will be present. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have eight children and anticipate a glorious time when they all gather. Both enjoy good health and Mr. Smith daily works at his trade with the Bellefonte Lumber Company, being one of their most trusted and oldest employees.

They were married on Feb. 19, fifty years ago, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wilson, of Unionville, by Rev. J. V. R. Hughes, then minister of the Presbyterian church at Bellefonte. The Rev. Hughes was an uncle of Prof. James R. Hughes, head master of the Bellefonte Academy. Most of their married life has been spent in Bellefonte.

The children are A. Clyde Smith, William H., G. P. M., Gilbert W., of Bellefonte; Clarence, of Johnstown; Gussie, wife of Frederick C. Miller, of Philadelphia; Frank R., of Bellefonte; and Helen Frances, wife of J. W. White, of State College.

Klansmen in Church.

Ku Klux Klan members of Phillipsburg district on Sunday evening marched from their quarters, in their robes and masks, to the Church of Christ, where they attended services. About 70 Klansmen were in a body. The church was crowded and a Klan member said there were as many members of the organization in the church in plain clothes as were masked. One of the Klansmen handed in a special contribution. Another offered prayer. The services were conducted as usual, according to the pastor, Rev. Clifford Bucy, who also stated that no special arrangements had been made and the Klansmen had come of their own accord to attend the services.

Greeters Banquet.

Members of the Central Pennsylvania Greeters Association gathered in the spacious dining room at the Bush House on Friday evening and had a royal good time, the feature being a banquet with roast duck as the piece de resistance. The president of the organization, Geo. D. Worthington, of Altoona, was toastmaster and his toasts were heartily responded to. The music, by the Shimer's orchestra of State College, was unusually good.

EXAMINE MOTOR DRIVERS

Bellefonte Designated as Place for Applicants to Appear.

Bellefonte has been designated as one of the towns in which applicants for motor drivers licenses will be examined, beginning March 1. Examinations will be held here on the first and third Wednesdays of each month, according to announcement by the State Highway Department, at Harrisburg. Allegheny St. and Lamb St. have been selected by the department for such examinations, which will be required of all applicants for drivers licenses who held neither a driver's license nor an operator's license in 1923.

Regulations governing examinations, as announced by the department, are as follows:—

"All examinations will be held at the direction of the secretary of highways by an inspector or a member of the state highway patrol.

"Applicants failing to meet all requirements of test must be re-examined.

"Applicants will bring a machine in good running order to such examination for the purpose of a practical demonstration, and observe the rule which requires that such applicants be accompanied by a licensed operator.

"Applicant will report for examination between the hours of 9 A. M. and 4 P. M. When examination days fall on holidays, the examination will go over until the next regular date. If this conflict with the expiration date shown on the learner's permit, the applicant will immediately notify the automobile division, department of highways, Harrisburg, giving his name and address as shown on the learner's permit, the date of issue and the reasons why he was unable to take the examination within the 30-day period.

"The examination will consist of a practical test to determine the applicant's ability to properly operate an automobile or motorcycle, an oral test to show applicant's knowledge of the motor vehicle laws and rules of the road, and a practical examination, when deemed advisable.

"No practical test will be given in any car the owner of which has not complied with the motor vehicle laws with respect to license tags, approved headlamp devices and adequate brakes. (Deaf operators must have their car equipped with a mirror.)

"Applicant must present his learner's permit to the examiner. No applicant will be examined whose permit has expired."

MOONSHINE VANISHES

Religion Taught by Rev. M. S. Q. Mellott Wins.

It looks as if the pastor of the Morrisdale M. E. church, the Rev. Matthew Stanley Quay Mellott, formerly pastor of the M. E. church, Howard charge, in Centre County, is going to accomplish what the combined efforts of state police, county, township and federal officers failed to conquer in Morrisdale section—that of wiping out the moonshine business.

Rev. Mellott went recently Morrisdale. He is a sincere Christian worker. For several weeks he has been conducting a series of special revival meetings. Reports of the services state that all kinds of sinners have been converted, including violators of the 18th amendment. Moonshine that was guaranteed to make dull care look like sunshine has been dumped into the sewer and stills demolished. The conversions to date number over 140.

Her 93rd Birthday.

A delicious supper and delightful social afternoon and evening was the special celebration in honor of the 93rd birthday anniversary of Mrs. Jonathan Bilger, at her home in Pleasant Gap, on Monday. Among those present were Wilson Bilger, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rees, Mrs. Abbie Rocky and son Crider, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Oils Hile, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Corl, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rocky, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rocky, Misses Annie and Vergie Bilger, Charles Bilger and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bilger, Mr. and Mrs. William Bilger, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hile and two children, Mr. and Mrs. James Rothrock, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gheen, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Heverly, Harry P. Austin, Clark Carson and Earl Barnard.

No Decision on Mill Property.

Council has made no definite step in the matter of the purchase of the Uish & Bashaw mill property, the meeting of Councilmen on Monday evening being devoted entirely to discussion. The matter is expected to come up at the regular meeting for further discussion on Monday evening.

TOLLGATES MEMORIES SOON IN CENTRE COUNTY

Board of Viewers Appointed to Appraise Over Last Two.

WILL PLEASE MOTORISTS

The last of the old tollgates in Centre County will soon be memories and very few persons seem to be taking it hard. In fact, motorists are pleased that the tollroads are gone and new state highways have replaced them. The last tollgates to go in Centre County are on the pike from Millheim to Coburn and the road from Millheim through the Narrows to the Brush valley road.

These roads have been under consideration for some time past. This week the board of viewers was named and accepted as follows: Ira Barket, Stormstown; John Eby, Zion; W. E. Hurley and H. P. Harris, Bellefonte, and H. H. Rorer, Rebersburg.

It is expected that shortly after they file their report both toll roads will be taken over and made free to the public.

It has not been so many years ago when tollgates were numerous in Centre County. They could never be regarded as popular. Many times, persons tried to evade the toll by racing through the gates. But a number of them flourished until the automobiles and rapid transportation for pleasure and business came and with the new mode of travel, the doom of the tollgates was sealed.

One by one tollgates were abandoned because of general condemnation by motorists who resented stopping every few miles to pay toll. The same has been true all over the state, wherever automobiles are used. Only a few more tollgates remain in the entire state and their days are numbered.

Y. M. C. A. DOINGS

Associated Business Men Want Real Community Centre.

The Associated Business Men have become interested in developing a real community centre at the Y. M. C. A. and selected a committee of three men: John M. Bullock, George Hazel and Charles Schlow.

The Associated Business Men and the members of the American Legion, Brooks—Doll post, desire to see the Y. M. C. A. assume a more important place in the community and to have more enthusiasm taken in the work. They are desirous, as organizations, of giving what assistance they can toward having the place developed as much as possible into a community centre where all creeds, men, women and children, may gather and find fit attractions.

At the meeting of the ex-service men last evening an American Legion committee was authorized.

The committees are to meet with the Y. M. C. A. board of directors and the Y. M. C. A. trustees to consider plans jointly looking forward to purchasing of more adequate equipment for the Y. M. C. A., for putting on new departments and considering advisability of putting the heating plant and swimming pool into usable shape. It is planned to have a joint meeting on Friday evening, Feb. 29th, at 8 o'clock.

The adjourned meeting of the board of directors with trustees of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Tuesday evening for the purpose of going over the finances and plans for the year. A committee was appointed to draft a budget and policy, which will go fully into the possibility of a broader work for the community at large and prepare a budget for the same, which will be presented at the meeting on Feb. 29th. Secretary Apelin said:

"Engineers have gone over the heating plant and the swimming pool project and estimate that the cost of putting both in good shape would be $30,000. It would mean an annual overhead expense of $1,500 and require the employment of a physical director. It is estimated that it would double interest and membership in the Y. Our present membership, as of January 1st, was 238, including 59 juniors, 60 seniors, and 33 sustaining members. The question in my mind is, would the people support such an additional expense?"

The third series of the bowling league will open on Monday evening, Feb. 18th. All the alleys will be in shape by that time and games will be played on each evening of the week excepting Saturday, instead of two games on Monday, Wednesday and Friday as heretofore. This will leave two alleys open for rolling each evening.

Woman Is Bitten to Death by Huge Rats

Walkerton, Ind.—Huge rats, which bit her on the face and neck as she lay helpless in her bed, caused the death of Mrs. Margaret Taylor, aged paralytic, of Walkerton. The wounds in the woman's neck indicated that the rodents were of huge size.

HURL FIRECRACKERS AS JOKE; FATAL TO 2

Deputy Sheriffs Out on Man Hunt Shoot Into Store.

Hazard, Ky.—A firecracker thrown as a joke at Glomawr, a village in this county, resulted in the death of two men and the wounding of a third.

Early in the evening William Smith, a Perry county deputy sheriff, was killed in a duel with Inman Phillips, who was wounded. Phillips, despite his injuries, fled into the mountains. The sheriff's office here was called upon and several deputies, including John Smith, a cousin of the man killed in the duel, trailed Phillips some distance and finally reached Glomawr.

The possemen, all armed, were expecting an attack, and suddenly a report was heard. A firecracker had been thrown, it is believed, from a small store operated by Jerry Dunn.

The deputy sheriffs, thinking they were fired upon, promptly sent a volley into the little store. When no answering shots came, the possemen investigated, finding J. D. Mathews and a man named Hayes dead and Dunn, the proprietor of the store, wounded.

Buy Jail for Chickens to Foil His Neighbors

Bellport, L. I.—The state prison commission some time ago condemned the jail at Bellport, a steel-lined frame building, so it was advertised for sale, the community deciding to use the "hoosegow" at Patchogue until it could afford a new one. In Bellport lives Clarence Ward, negro, who keeps chickens—keeps them, that is, except when persons with more acquisitive instinct than moral restraint abstract them by night. Ward has tried all sorts of things to overcome that fowl trait in some of his neighbors, but the chickens have kept on disappearing.

Now it chanced that some constable with literary leanings had inscribed over the jail door, "He who enters here leaves hope behind." That, it seemed to Ward, might be made strikingly true if that jail were his—true for the chickens because they would never emerge except to be eaten, and true for any marauder because the building was capable of being made a trap for intruders. So Ward bought the jail for $50 and now it is a hen coop.

Robberies Force Family to Seek New Residence

New York.—Isaac M. Oshinsky, cloak manufacturer at 28 West Twenty-seventh street, has returned to his home, 5403 Fifteenth street, Brooklyn, with his family. The Oshinskys moved to the Belvedere hotel in Manhattan after their home was robbed about ten days ago and a quantity of jewelry taken. The reason for moving was that the robbery was the fifth one in the Oshinsky home since August. The loot taken in these robberies exceeded $20,000.

When the family moved out three private detectives moved in. Nothing happened for two nights. The last night the detectives caught a man, they said, in the act of breaking into the house. He said he was Hans Gebraun, a resident of a Bowery lodging house. The detectives said he had a fountain pen in his pocket that had previously been taken from the Oshinsky house.

Veteran Woman Sleuth Taken as Shoplifter

Boston.—After having spent more than twenty years of her life hunting shoplifters in the capacity of store detective, Mrs. Maude Murray of Cambridge turned and became one of the hunted.

According to her own story she has for the past year and a half taken advantage of her intimate knowledge of local stores and personnel and has been pilfering goods. She blames the work she has been in for her predicament.

"I just can't explain," she said, "but an irresistible desire to take things comes over me. Thinking about stealing so much in my work is to blame." A stenographer she did not know caught her stealing in a downtown store and promptly brought about her arrest, at which she wept bitterly. Later in the day she was arraigned and held for trial. It is likely that she will be sent to the Psychopathic hospital for observation.

Former Waterboy Now Official of Railroad

Birmingham, Ala.—William E. Smith, once a construction gang waterboy, has been named assistant general manager of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, according to announcement made here recently. Mr. Smith is superintendent of the North and South Alabama and Mineral divisions of the road. He succeeds Thomas E. Brooks, who was named general manager, following the death of B. M. Starks.

Living Scale Is Lower Since War

Economics of Country Dominated by Its Effects.

New York.—The scale of living for the American people as a whole is lower than before the war, according to Dr. W. R. Ingalls, New York mining engineer and economist, who has just completed a survey of the economic prospect for 1924 for the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Dr. Ingalls, a member of the bureau of economic research, thinks that the immediate outlook for business regarding things needed for direct use is good, but that it is not so good for things that the upbuilding of mines, railways, factories, etc., require.

"I still see the economics of this country, as well as of the rest of the world, dominated by the consequences of the war, and I think that it will be many years before we are clear of them," he says. "In the meanwhile there will be ups and downs in business."

Underlying everything is the destruction of the war, which brought Austria, Germany and Russia to ruin and impoverished other countries. Not even the United States escaped physical loss.

"Yet in Europe and America alike there developed a mental unbalance in the thoughts of men that in some way the war had produced conditions whereby men could enjoy an improved scale of living without being constrained to work so hard as formerly. There developed other conditions which have put serious obstacles in the way of the international division of labor. These adverse developments may be characterized as the international unbalance."

Farmer Hard Hit.

"In the United States a fundamental consequence of the war was the upsetting of the old economic equilibrium in our domestic system. This produced what I call the primary unbalance; between property and management on the one hand and labor on the other; and the secondary unbalance among classes of labor whereby some of them have benefited greatly while others have suffered acutely. There are tertiary and quaternary unbalances among the divisions and groups of classes of labor."

"The economic discomfort of the farmers is ascribable in part to the international unbalance and in part to the domestic primary unbalance, the farmers being owners of property who have suffered at the hands of town labor. Similarly is the unhappy position of the white-collar classes of labor attributable to the secondary unbalance among workers themselves."

"I do not think that the American people as a whole are enjoying so good a scale of living as pre-war, although some classes have improved their status as a consequence of the unbalancing. A fundamental reason for this opinion is that we are not producing enough, which is ascribable in part to the increased diversion of labor to service, and in part to the slackening in hours and efficiency per hour by those who are working as direct producers."

"Although engineering and management have done something to offset this, it has not been possible for them to develop a complete compensation within so short a time."

"The effects of these fundamental conditions are bound to be slow. We may go through 1924 with the general feeling that all is well, and indeed things may superficially look so. We may even try to make some sort of a forecast from these fundamental conditions."

All Will Become Clear.

"In a general way we may expect a continuance in activity in the production of consumers' goods and dullness in those branches that pertain especially to capital goods. There will be upswings and downswings, according as producers misread the signs and overproduce some things with the result of accumulation of stocks, whereof orderly digestion must then be awaited. The setback in business activity in the latter half of 1923 is explainable in that way. In all kinds of production we shall for a long time experience the effects of the excessive provision of producing capacity that happened during the war."

"The desire to make use of surplus capacity will contract margins of profits and will be a constant incentive toward overproduction of some kinds of goods. Labor, with no understanding of real conditions, will have more and more in strangling ways. Even now we foresee a great strike of bituminous coal miners next April."

"To those who will weigh these words much that seems paradoxical will become clear. Retail traders are doing large business and are optimistic. The manufacturers of many kinds of machinery, on the contrary, find things slow, and in their sentiment range from doubtful to pessimistic. The one has to do with consumers' goods, the other with capital goods."

"Any forecast should, of course, take into account the imminence of German collapse and should allow for surprises elsewhere. American economics are not independent of those of the rest of the world."

"Let anybody draw what deductions from these opinions that he will. My own deduction is that real well-being awaits the removal of a good many economic restrictions, with which we have enmeshed ourselves, and the restoration of the old economic equilibrium."

Odd Timepieces Used by Ancients

Egyptians Had Water-Clock and Greeks Used Sundial.

Washington.—A 24-hour day, beginning at midnight, is so universally accepted by landsmen that the recent announcement that the system would be extended to ships, which now begin their day at noon, was surprising.

"However, land time and ship time are only two of a number of ways which men have marked the fleeting moments, and various other ways survive even now," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Alfred the Great had wax candles, 12 inches long, marked in notches to tell off the four hours they burned. He later covered them with thin white horn, lantern-fashion, to protect them from drafts, but he was far behind his times in comparison with other portions of the world, and his timepiece was crude in the extreme compared with other inventions before 900 A. D.

Ancient Sundials.

"Primitive peoples, before the dawn of history, fixed a pole or stick in the ground and drew a line about it representing the course of the shadow it cast from sunrise to sunset. We may suppose that when Mr. Caveman started out in the morning on a foraging expedition, he led Mrs. Caveman out and notched the shadow-line to show her when she could expect him home. Some of his fellow-mortals in other parts of the world in the same stage of development made a kind of hemp or grass rope which they dampened and knotted in regular spaces. When this was lighted, the slowly and regularly creeping spark told off the flight of time. It is said that these primitive time-markers are used in parts of Chosen, Korea.

"Though some students believe that the early Japanese had no method of reckoning time, others claim that primitive Japanese and Chinese used almost the same thing as the rope,

WRONG EAGLE ON COINS

Strangely enough, the eagle on a gold eagle coin is not a golden eagle, but one of a more ignoble species, the bald eagle. The same is true all through American coinage and other places where the eagle is used as the symbolic bird of America. Now Montana civic bodies and nature lovers are campaigning to have the national symbol changed from the bald eagle (as shown against a background of stars) to the bushy-headed golden eagle, shown below.

Schneider Cup Won by U. S. Navy

Schneider cup won by American navy pilots in the seaplane race held at Cowes, England. Lieut. David Rittenhouse, U. S. N., was first with a speed of 177.88 miles an hour, a new world's record for seaplane speed. Lieut. Rutledge Irvine, U. S. N., was second with a speed of 173 miles an hour.

While the charge of theft brought against her chauffeur by the late or the ex-Mrs. Corey was on trial in a Paris court, an interesting problem of the dilemma sort was presented for consideration. It seems that the man's wage had been only 400 francs, or about $21, a month, and his counsel tried to win sympathy for him by saying that an employer who paid her servant an amount on which by no possibility he could live had no right to feel surprised at being robbed, and in fact deserved to be. This plea was met by the lawyer who was pressing the prosecution. He declared that no man would accept such wages unless he was planning to rob his employer, and that therefore the chauffeur deserved no mercy. There is about both of these assertions something of plausibility, the one having no less of it than the other. Whether the court considered either will never be known, but the decision was that the man should go to jail for ten months and pay a fine of 70,000 francs.

Route and Pilots for Globe Circling Flight

Four Douglas cruisers of the army air service will start from Seattle early in the spring on a flight around the world. The illustration shows a map of the proposed route, and, left to right, Lieuts. Lowell H. Smith, Erik H. Nelson and Leigh Wade, three of the pilots selected. The expedition will be under the command of Maj. F. L. Martin.

Niagara Falls to Be Dry in 3924

Geologists Say Tilting of Soil Will Change Flow of Water.

New York.—On the very spot where Buffalo's great factories now turn out their giant air liners, our ancestors used to stand and gaze in awe at the thunder of the greatest cataract in the world—Niagara falls. Over this falls, 2,000 years ago 220,000 cubic feet of water plunged every second. Tourists came from all over the world to gaze at this natural wonder, and the thunder of the waters could be heard for miles away.

Such is what the school children of 3924 will read in their histories and geographies if the prediction of Prof. Ulysses S. Grant, head of the department of geology at Northwestern university, in Chicago, is correct.

For, according to Professor Grant, Niagara will cease to flow in 3924, leaving Lake Ontario stranded and the wonderful scenic beauty of Niagara gorge and the hills a thing of the past.

River May Dry Up.
Possibly Michigan's two peninsulas may be joined, and it is also entirely possible that the Detroit river may dry up.

Here is what Professor Grant has found:

Gradually the east end of Lake Michigan is being raised above the level of the west end. As water will seek its own level, it is obvious the lake surface will change. Tilting of the earth's surface causes this change in the lake's level. The difference in levels between the east end and the west end is now only eight feet. By measuring the change in levels in the past, and by carefully observing and recording the lake levels, scientists now are able to estimate approximately when the levels will be equal. And when they are equal the flow will cease, other conditions being unchanged.

Lake Michigan is now tilting southward six inches per 100 years. The Canadian border is being raised by tilting of the earth.

The shore line of Lake Michigan is continually advancing westward. Careful measurements over a long period of time show how much the lake is tilting westward.

Thus, through a careful study of these conditions, Professor Grant announces his belief that there will be no Niagara 2,000 years from now. If this be true and Lake Michigan tilts southward, this would serve to dry up the straits and would join the two peninsulas of Michigan, providing of course that there was a similar tilt to the earth strata in the eastern part of Michigan and Canada. The rising of the Canadian side would tend to make Windsor a hillside suburb of Detroit, with the river disappearing and Detroit's dream of a lakes-to-the-sea route shattered.

Must Control Lake Level.
Still, 2,000 years is a long time ahead and, if science progresses as much in the next 20 centuries as it has in the last, ocean routes will become a thing of the past, scientists predict, giant liners of the air carrying the world's commerce at a speed never even dreamed of.

Associated with Professor Grant in his researches has been Prof. John B. Hayford, director of the School of Engineering at Northwestern university. For the past 10 years, Professor Hayford has studied the lakes with the view of finding out how much is lost by evaporation. As a result, he has concluded that some method of controlling the lake level must be advanced.

This regulation is possible, Professor Hayford pointed out in a voluminous report, by a series of movable dams—a plan recommended by officials of the sanitary district of Chicago. The dams would be built in the St. Lawrence river, near Lake Ontario, and in the Niagara river opposite Buffalo. This would make it possible to raise or to lower the lake levels as necessity calls.

The significance and importance of this is marked in the handling of commerce on the lakes. Professor Hayford now can estimate in a day the level of the lake at any given point. Formerly this required a week. Increase of the level of one-tenth of a foot makes it possible for the typically large lake vessels to carry 70 more tons of freight with very little additional expense. An annual saving of a million dollars in freight would result.

Forming the Falls.
A study of the efforts during the Nineteenth century to learn the age of Niagara falls brings up some interesting facts in connection with a statement that Niagara will cease in 3924 A. D.

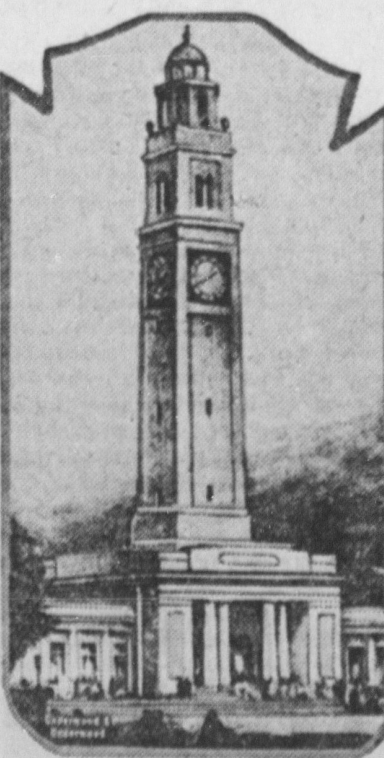

Geologists say that when the glaciers drew back, the Great Lakes were revealed. Water then was discharged down the Illinois river, Lake Huron's level was lowered. Lake Huron, Lake Superior and Lake Michigan flowed out through the Ottawa valley, leaving Erie and Ontario to discharge down Niagara.

Between Lakes Erie and Ontario are layers of hard stone. In 23,000 years Lake Erie cut the gorge back four miles.

The land tilted upward. The upper lakes were turned down into Lake Erie once more and Niagara plunged on and tore out more rock. Nature is still working away at it and other conditions are bringing the condition when the flow will be turned back again and Niagara will not get water.

35,000 Years Work.
As far back as 1816 Frances Hall wrote, "The Horseshoe fall is no longer the shape of a horseshoe. Erosion is changing it to an acute angle."

MEMORIAL TO HEROES

This is the campanile which is being built at Baton Rouge, La., at the entrance to the new Louisiana State university and agricultural and mechanical college as a memorial to the sons of the university and of the state, who went to the World war and didn't come back. The tower was designed by the late Theo. C. Link as his last work.

Couple Awarded $866 for Fall in Theater

Somerville, N. J.—A jury in Somerset Circuit court here awarded $400 to Mrs. C. M. Henry as a result of an injury which she suffered in a motion picture theater in Newark. Her husband, Doctor Henry, received an award of $466 for loss of her services.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry charged that because of an usher's negligence they had been forced to seek their own seats in a darkened theater and that Mrs. Henry had stumbled, sprained her ankle and suffered other injuries which incapacitated her for a month.

In 1824 Sir Charles Lyell and Prof. James Hall visited the falls and after some study they stated that they thought recession was about a foot a year.

The length of the gorge from Lewiston up is seven miles. The time for erosion was estimated at about 35,000 years.

Mr. Bakewell, British geologist, next estimated the recession at three feet a year, which reduced the period of erosion to 11,000 years.

Professor Hall in 1842 made a very careful trigonometric survey of the Horseshoe fall, erecting marks at points where the angles were taken, so that the rate of recession could be determined in the future.

Another estimate was made in 1886 by Mr. Woodward of the United States geological survey, who estimated five feet a year as the rate of recession, or 7,000 years in the making of the gorge.

Dutch Kids Tutors for Former Crown Prince

Wieringen, Holland.—Children of the fishermen of the island of Wieringen were the chief companions of ex-Crown Prince William of Germany during his stay here after the revolution. When the former prince was not making horseshoes, one of his favorite forms of exercise, or reading, he was strolling about the fields or along the wharfs with his pals, the youngsters. It was from the children, chiefly, that William learned to speak Dutch fluently.

"My best helpers in picking up the language were the children of the fishermen," the ex-prince said just before his departure to join his family at his castle at Oels, Silesia. "The children were not shy like the old folks, some of whom often were awed by my presence, and just as natural as could be. I played with the boys and girls, held the little ones sometimes on my knee, drew for them pictures of animals and houses and trees, and even sketched some of the most picturesque children themselves and gave them results of my drawings."

"By association with the children I learned the language better and easier than if I had devoted all my time to studying books and papers. The brain of a normal youngster is the most curious thing in the world. The best system for an adult to learn another language is to talk regularly with children about nature and about books and pictures. Children just naturally are interested in everything."

William, who is forty-five, has six children of his own, the eldest being eighteen.

Square Mile of Riches

London.—"The square mile in the city which is controlled by the corporation of London contributes one-quarter of the total income tax of the kingdom," said H. T. McAuliffe, chairman of the finance, coal and corn committee of the city corporation, at a lunch at the Guildhall. A total of $1,750,000,000 was collected in income tax in the United Kingdom in 1920-1921.

BOLLES RESIGNS AS NATIONAL ADJUTANT

Lemuel Bolles, perhaps more closely associated with the American Legion for a greater length of time than any other World war veteran, has resigned his position as national adjutant.

Bolles was a delegate to the Paris conference at which the actual work of organization was completed. He had a part in drafting the national constitution of the organization and was named a member of the executive committee when a permanent organization was formed at that caucus. Franklin D'Olier, as national commander in 1919, named Bolles to the position of national adjutant which he has since held by appointment from every succeeding commander.

He was born in Minneapolis, Minn., in 1885, just when the pioneers were resting after opening up the West. His grandfather built the first grist mill ever erected in that state.

As a youth he tended furnaces, cows and horses during his boyhood, and by these earnings educated himself at McAllister academy in St. Paul. In spare times he assisted in opening up Northern Pacific land grants for settlement, as a member of and appraising and surveying party in the Western Dakotas.

By the time he was fifteen he was riding along the Buffalo divide in the Grande river country—into the Dakota "Bad Lands." Before long he accompanied a carload of western ponies to Yakima, Wash., and chose that section as his home.

He was in the banking, fruit-growing, law and soldiering business, all of which meant diligent study for the young man—a hardy offshoot of the pioneers of the early Nineteenth century. As a climax to the legal phase of his life, he became an assistant in the office of the adjutant general in the state of Washington where he received great inspiration for military life.

Lemuel Bolles.

In 1917, when America entered the World war, Bolles was assistant adjutant general in that state, holding the rank of major.

He was named as assistant quartermaster with the Forty-first division, and was sent to France where he was assigned to Headquarters First Army corps as assistant general in charge of supply transportation and evacuation for the whole corps. He held the rank of lieutenant colonel and served through the Champagne, the Marne, the Aisne-Marne, Toul and Meuse-Argonne drives. For meritorious services he received the rank of Chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur from France.

Still holding a commission in the organized reserve, he is a lieutenant colonel commanding the Three Hundred and Thirty-fourth infantry of the Eighty-fourth division.

His Legion service has been long and useful.

He was given a month's leave of absence on his return to the United States in order to arrange for the first annual convention of the American Legion which was held at Minneapolis in 1919. Following this convention he accepted the post of national adjutant, which he has since held.

Perhaps no one person in Legion circles has a wider acquaintance. Mr. Bolles' mail reached 1,000 letters a day, his duties have taken him into every section of the country, and he has made countless friends in his breezy, wholesome way.

Mr. Bolles is resigning to accept a position with a firm of New York publishers.

In speaking of the resignation, National Commander John R. Quinn, who had reappointed Mr. Bolles as national adjutant following the San Francisco convention, said:

"The resignation of Lemuel Bolles is a loss to the American Legion. His place will not easily be filled. If it were possible for me to retain his services, I would do so. I could seek no better support as national commander than to continue his services for the organization. It would be manifestly unfair, however, to attempt to persuade him to remain. There comes a time in every man's life when that man must give consideration to his own welfare. I feel that the work Mr. Bolles has done for the Legion, the sacrifices he has made for the Legion, have largely prevented the advancement of his own career."

"He goes from this organization with hundreds of thousands of friends. His unremitting toil for the organization, his zeal in carrying out the administration of the organization, his labor in building up the organization—all these things have become invaluable. I can wish him no greater success than that which has always accompanied his efforts as national adjutant of the Legion."

Deceased was born at Port Matilda on Aug. 12, 1854, a daughter of Peter and Sarah Fleck. On March 31, 1872, she was united in marriage to Mr. Markle, who survives with five sons and six daughters as follows: James Luther and John M., of Fosteria; George H., Tyrone; A. C. Charlottesville; Herbert C., Beaver Falls; Mrs. J. M. Johnson, of Pine Grove Mills; Mrs. J. M. Keller, Mrs. C. E. Wilson, Mrs. W. M. Keller, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. R. C. Salkeld, of Mt. Lebanon; Mrs. Don Davis, of Waynesburg. Funeral services were held in the M. E. church at Gratzville on Wednesday and burial made at Charlottesville.

Pennsy Efficiency Tests.

How train accidents caused by "man failure" are prevented on the Pennsylvania Railroad System is shown in a report just compiled by the Chief of Transportation. This report covers what are known as "efficiency" tests to determine whether employees engaged in train movement are properly observing signals, operating rules and other safety precautions. Results of these tests show consistently as high as 99.9% efficiency on the part of employees to whom the tests are applied.

SEED CORN SITUATION

Farm Agent Robinson Will Test Supplies on Request.

Centre County farmers will do well to test their seed corn at once. Inspection of several cribs throughout the county shows the seed corn to be in a very poor condition. Corn went into the crib last fall carrying a high percentage of moisture and shows a large percentage of moldy corn at this time. A rather mild winter is the only thing that has saved the repetition of a seed corn situation similar to the spring of 1919.

The County Farm Bureau is locating the available good seed corn and will be in a position to help you if your seed is poor. Any samples left at the office will be tested for you and if you have an exceptional good lot of seed notify the Farm Bureau as present indications point to a serious shortage for the spring planting. With high cost of labor, fertilizer, etc., it is poor economy to plant doubtful seed. Replanting never pays.

OVER THE COUNTY

The C. D. Mitterling home at Centre Hall has been quarantined for chicken pox.

Postmaster Glenn, of State College, on Friday afternoon received word from the supervising architect at Washington, D. C., that the bid of R. Zimmerli, of Pratt, Kansas, for the erection of a new post-office building at State College has been accepted. Looks as though a cherished dream of our sister town would soon be realized.

Why should the state highway be interested in a concrete road in Bald Eagle valley? There are many reasons, but the motorists know that it is the shortest, easiest route connecting the through east and west highways and motorists, not only throughout the state, but from scattered sections as well, will appreciate the saving in mileage that such a link would make possible. Where is there in the Keystone state now a piece of road more deserving of consideration—a stretch of highway that would reflect as much credit to the highway department?

Care of the state highway from the watering trough on Nittany mountain to Bellefonte has been assigned to William F. Floray, of Centre Hall, for several years an employee of the highway department.

Rev. Harry A. Hartman resigned as pastor of the Buffalo Valley Reformed church to accept the pastorate of the Hubersburg charge, the resignation of Rev. Hartman being effective on the 15th.

The cries of her eleven-year-old companion saved the life of Louise Gates, 6, when the latter broke through ice on a pond near the children's homes in Blanchard. Nearby residents heard the cries for help and were able to save the little tot by using a pole and rope.

Millheim's newest business enterprise, the Millheim Body Works, manufacturers of bodies for automobiles, is in operation. Roy Heid, driver of the Millheim-Madisonburg mail route, will get the first one to be turned out a suburban body for a Chevrolet chassis.

NATURELAND NEWS

"I am going to read you the latest copy of the Natureland News," said Billie Brownie to the other Brownies. "All of the most interesting items are in it, I believe."

So the Brownies all sat about while Billie Brownie perched herself upon a mossy stump and read the newspaper of the Nature world.

And this is what he read: "The Prairie Horned Larks first came from the Prairies but now are spending most of their time further North. They like the ground for they say it makes a good dining room, a good walking place and altogether the ground has its uses."

"Some dear little boa constrictor snakes have recently arrived in the zoo. This is the way they wished the item about themselves to appear and the Editor of Natureland News is always ready to oblige."

The Brownies laughed at this for they thought the editor had been pretty wise to please the snakes and at the same time to let others know that he hadn't been the one to word that item.

"Pigeons living in a city, who have made their homes under some friendly eaves, are very careful to fly out into the open air every time they feel the tremor which comes from some nearby blasting."

"They are quite sure that nothing will happen to them, yet at the same time they remember that centuries ago pigeons were always told to leave their rocky homes when there was any shaking of the rocks for the air was safe and sure."

"Mrs. Charles Camel of the zoo has a daughter one week old. She felt so jealous because of Mrs. Camel's son who was born in a nearby zoo some time before that she wasn't happy up

"Mother and Daughter."

til a little daughter made her appearance and said that she had come to stay. Both mother and daughter are well and happy. And many congratulations are being received.

"A baby Barasingha fawn has also just been born in the zoo. If you can't pronounce the Barasingha part never mind. The fawn can't either!"

"News has been received that the Prong-Horn Antelopes are to be protected. This is good news indeed. They are greatly admired by the Editor of Natureland News. Some of their ways are particularly interesting. But their beauty and grace is especially worthy of notice."

"The Frogs are giving a course of lectures on 'Successful Frogs and How They Became Successful.' The Frogs are of the opinion that the more they study upon this subject the more successful they will be."

"They feel success is mostly hard work and it is all they can do to keep from talking of their work too much for it interests them more than anything else. In this way, they say, they are like many people."

"Many find the Frogs tiresome these days, talking so much of their work and of their course of lectures. But the Frogs do not mind."

"They insist upon their rights in and out of season. They feel that they are all-important and they also feel that hard work and taking pains will make them good at their work. Also they will be very patient but from much experience they will, they feel, be very excellent by the time they are finished with their course and their studies."

"The work they speak of and about which the lectures are centered is 'The Work of Being a Successful Bug Snapper.' Some do not think it should be called work. A most interesting experience was had recently by a black-headed Albatross who followed a ship for seven days. The ship threw out bread crumbs and bits of fish and other delicacies to the bird who ate them and then continued his journey, following the ship."

"At the end of seven days he went back home. The ocean voyage had done him much good, he reported, and the food he had been given had been of the best. Even when the storms had been at their height he had not minded. He said the people were impressed because he could pick up his food off the waves without moving his wings but leaving them the way they were."

"Black-headed Albatross has handsome black feathers upon his head and silver white upon his body and he was called a storm bird by the people on the ship."

"This is one of the interesting bits of foreign travel news which the Natureland News is glad to publish."

HALLOWE'EN

For five years young Janet had taken part in the Halloween festivities and had never known just why there was a Halloween, what Halloween meant, nor why they always played so strange, weird, funny games and pranks on this one evening of the year.

But she was almost ashamed to ask anyone. It seemed so absurd, so utterly absurd not to know what Halloween meant.

Yet did everyone know?

Weren't there perhaps some others, just as she was thinking, who wished they knew but who hated to ask?

She felt if she would say: "Just what is Halloween?" she would be told:

"Why Halloween—you don't know what Halloween is—" and then there would be a laugh.

Once she had ventured to ask the question, and she had been told that Halloween was a night when children had parties and went about and pretended they were witches and strange folk.

Well, she knew that much! That was what she did know.

What she wondered was why there was a party on a night given such a name—the name itself was somehow difficult.

And now the time had come around again. And there was going to be a party. Oh, it was going to be a gorgeous party.

First of all they were going to dress up in very old and funny clothes.

Janet and her sisters and brothers and all their friends were going to gather at Janet's that evening of the thirty-first of October.

Their mothers and fathers had promised to lend them some old hats and sticks and umbrellas—and their mothers had some fascinatingly old skirts which trailed along the ground and which hung down in so nice and queer a way!

First of all, they were going to have supper, and such a supper it would be. Janet had heard her mother talk about it.

They were going to have the table decorated with an enormous Jack o' Lantern, in the center of Jack a great candle would burn brightly, and from his cut-out eyes and mouth and nose and ears would come the flickering light.

Then there were going to be tiny Jack o' Lanterns at either end of the table with smaller candles in them.

And all about the table there would be autumn leaves, and under every autumn leaf a nut would be hidden, for they were going to have nuts at dessert time.

And they were going to have a special supper of chicken and stewed potatoes with plenty of brown gravy which would look like the autumn time, and which would taste ever so good, too.

Ice cream, too, had been promised. Oh, there were the greatest of preparations for the party. Janet didn't know just all there would be at the party.

And yet she was sad, for she did so wish she knew what Halloween meant. And yet again she was ashamed to ask.

It was so horrid to be made fun of. She wished people didn't make fun of others when they didn't know everything.

It would be so much more fun to find out, and then one wouldn't stay ignorant for any length of time, as one was very apt to do if one kept from asking because of the fear of being made fun of.

But Janet knew her mother would not make fun of her. That wasn't the reason she didn't ask her mother. She hated to let her mother think she didn't know. At last, though, she asked, and then her mother told her.

Her mother explained that October thirty-first was the night before All Saints' day, or, as it was called, Halloween.

Hallow, her mother told her, meant a holy time, and e'en was short for evening.

So that the evening before the religious day known as All Saints' day was called always Halloween.

And custom had made Halloween into a time for children, for in many, many countries there were different celebrations and games for children on this evening of the year.

And how happy Janet was that at last she knew what the word meant. And also that Halloween was a time which custom had given to children for fun making!

That was most especially nice!

Washington Pie.—Cream one-fourth cupful of butter with one cupful of sugar, add two well-beaten eggs and one-half cupful of milk. Mix two and one-half teaspoonfuls of milk with one and two-thirds cupfuls of flour and add to the first mixture. Beat well and bake in layer tins. This will make two layers. Put together with raspberry jam and top with powdered sugar.

Marshmallow Pudding.—Dissolve one tablespoonful of gelatin in one cupful of boiling water, add one cupful of sugar and as soon as dissolved set the bowl into a pan of ice water. Add three egg whites beaten stiff and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Beat until the mixture thickens. Turn into a shallow pan and let stand until chilled. Cut into pieces the size and shape of marshmallows, roll in macaroon crumbs and serve with cream.

Planked Club Steak.—Wash one-half cupful of butter and add one-half tablespoonful each of finely chopped red pepper, green pepper and parsley, one-fourth of a tablespoonful of finely-minced onion and one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice. Spread one-third of the mixture on the center of the plank and arrange piped, mashed potatoes around the edge. Pan-broil a steak for four minutes and remove to the hot plank. Put into the oven to finish cooking.

Mrs. Charles Bowes and son Mack, visited at the home of Hughes McKibben at Lock Haven, over Sunday.

Mrs. Yacoubian, a native Armenian and a representative of the Near East, who spoke in the Methodist church last Sunday evening, gave a very interesting talk. The collection amounted to $100.06 in cash which was given towards the Near East fund.

Edwin R. bb, a student at Bucknell college, Lewisburg, spent the weekend here among many of his friends.

The Ku Klux Klan erected two fiery crosses just on the outside of the borough limits of Howard, about 9 o'clock Wednesday night, Feb. 6. The crosses were lighted and the customary charge of dynamite exploded.

The first union meeting during the week of prayer was held at the Reformed church Monday evening, Tuesday evening at the Methodist church and Wednesday evening at the Evangelical church. The meeting will be held on Thursday evening at Sheetz's auditorium and Friday evening at the Church of Christ. These meetings are being well attended.

Miss Clara Butler made a flying trip to Lock Haven on Saturday.

A quiet wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage on Monday afternoon, when Mrs. Grace A. Lyons became the wife of Miles E. Eiters. Both are of Howard R. F. D. The couple were attended by Harry Lucas, brother of the bride, and Mary Eiters, sister of the groom. The groom is employed at Lock Haven and will likely reside there. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

Miles F. Bartley and Miss Florence B. Neff, both of Nittany, were united in marriage on Feb. 6, by the bride's pastor, Rev. Arthur A. Price, of Howard. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Neff, of Little Nittany valley, and a highly respectable young lady. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bartley, also of Little Nittany valley, and a progressive farmer living near Jacksonville. Their friends extend congratulations.

JAMES SHARP DEAD

Injuries in Auto Accident and Exposure Prove Fatal.

James Sharp, a well known young man of Hublersburg, died early on Monday morning from injuries received in an automobile accident on Christmas night and subsequent exposure.

The deceased was a member of a party of young men who were riding in a car driven by Jerry Harshberger, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Harshberger, also well known residents of Nittany valley. The car struck a tree along the state highway passing through Hublersburg and Mr. Sharp was the only one seriously injured.

He suffered head injuries and lay out all night along the road. The physician in attendance had an X-ray taken to ascertain the extent of the injuries and they indicated that the skull had been fractured. The young man seemed to get along well under treatment, however, and it was thought he would fully recover. He was employed at the silk mill in Bellefonte and returned to work but after being on the job four days, he again became ill and returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharp, and in another week he passed away. His death was a great shock in the community where he was held in high esteem and known as a fine young man.

James Sharp was past seventeen years of age. Beside his parents, he is survived by one sister, Lajune, at home. He was a charter member of the Penn-Centre Chapter DeMolay and this order will have charge of the funeral services, this Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Samuel Campbell Dead.

Samuel Campbell, a well known resident of Milesburg, died very suddenly last Friday morning in the office of a local physician. The deceased had not been well for some time. He was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company as a watchman at the crossing on High street and went to the doctor's office soon after starting work on Friday morning. He returned to work again but seemed to continue very ill and told a companion that he thought he was going to die. He then returned to the doctor's office where he expired a short time later. He was 62 years old. He was treasurer of the Milesburg Lodge of Odd Fellows and a member of the M. E. church of that place. His wife suffered a stroke two years ago and has been quite ill. Surviving are his widow, a son, Lester Campbell, of Tyrone; a daughter, Mrs. Florence Campbell, of McKeesport, and a brother, Hiram, of Tyrone. Funeral services were held on Monday and burial made in Tricynay cemetery.

Mrs. Annie R. Wert Dead.

Mrs. Annie Rebecca Wert died at her home in Rebersburg on Sunday morning from cancer. Deceased was a daughter of Daniel and Harriet Hosterman and was born in Penn Township. She was 60 years old. Her husband preceded her in death. Surviving are the following children: Mrs. A. P. Burrell, Spring Mills; William H., Patton; M. C. and J. A., of Rebersburg; Mrs. J. G. Brungart, of Kaneville, Ill.; Paul M. and Ralph, of Millheim; two brothers: John Hosterman, of Manno, S. D.; William, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; and one sister, Mrs. J. E. Harter, of Coburn. Burial was made in Millheim cemetery on Wednesday.

GEORGE C. RHOADS DEAD

Well Known Contractor Dies Suddenly From Heart Trouble.

George C. Rhoads, one of the well known residents of Coleville, died very unexpectedly at his home on Sunday morning between 7 and 8 o'clock. He had been about his work on Saturday in apparently his usual health. On Sunday Mrs. Rhoads was talking to him about going to church and he remarked, as he lighted a cigar, "If you look out the window and see how it snowed, I don't think you will want to go to church." He seemed then to lie back on the bed and did not answer when Mrs. Rhoads spoke to him. Alarmed, she called in their son, Leonard Rhoads, who resides near the parental home, and two physicians were summoned, but Mr. Rhoads had expired before they arrived.

The deceased was always an active resident of this section. In his early life, he was a glass blower and played clarinet in the famed Coleville band. For many years he has been engaged in concrete construction work, first under the firm name of Kinsely & Rhoads, and for some time past as Rhoads & Sons. Many of the substantial concrete jobs in Centre County put in during the past few years were constructed under his direction. Fraternally, he was a member of the Masons and always was a pleasant, congenial associate.

He was a son of William and Lydia Rhoads, both deceased, and was born at Coleville on Dec. 19, 1871. On Christmas day, 1890, he was united in marriage to Miss Esther A. Purdie, who survives with four sons: Albert, of Bellefonte; Wilbert, Leonard, and Lee, of Coleville; one sister, Mrs. William Jodon, of Bellefonte; and three brothers: Harry and Clarence, of Bellefonte and William, of Axemann. Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon and burial made in Union cemetery.

Mrs. Emma C. Thompson Dead.

Mrs. Emma Catherine Thompson, widow of the late James W. Thompson, died at 5 o'clock on Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Haag, on South Allegheny St., from complications. Deceased had suffered very much in the past two years but bore her cross with patience. For eight years she had been in failing health and for two years she had been bedfast most of the time. The past three weeks she was very seriously ill but she had a remarkable constitution and life ebbed away but slowly. Born in Bellefonte, on October 18, 1864, the deceased was a daughter of Eli and Ann Clemson. She married James W. Thompson and they had resided in Greensburg, where he passed away about 14 years ago. Mrs. Thompson spent most of the time since then among her children and with her mother, who is still living at 92 years of age and is spending the winter in Cresson. Her mother is a remarkable woman and had been enjoying good health until Wednesday of last week, when she had a severe choking spell and has since been ill. Besides her mother, she is survived by two sons and two daughters: Eugene of South Fork; Harold, of Lejosce, Clearfield County; Mrs. Ralph Haag, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Annie L. Jamison, of Baden; two brothers and two sisters: Mrs. Flora White, Lejosce; Mrs. Charles Nixon, N. J.; Elmer Clemson, Spangler; William, Irvona. Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon, and burial was made in the Union cemetery.

Mill Hall Woman Burned.

Mrs. Edna May Fry, wife of Jacob Fry, who resided near Mill Hall, died last Thursday night at 9 o'clock in the Lock Haven hospital from burns received at 3:45 o'clock in the afternoon when her dress became ignited as she was kindling a fire in the heating stove at her home. It is believed she used kerosene to start the fire and that it flared up unexpectedly. Neighbors came to her aid when they heard her screams. They found her and one of her children alone, her clothing burned from her body, her hair all burned off and her body charred and seared. She was writhing in agony and very weak but managed to tell the neighbors that she was kindling the fire when her clothing ignited. She was 33 years old and leaves her husband and five children.

Mrs. Margaret Wike Dead.

Mrs. Margaret Wike, a daughter of the late Jacob and Margaret Ellenberger, pioneer settlers in the Half Moon valley, died at the home of her son, G. W. Wike, in Altoona, on Saturday. The deceased was born at Loveville on "Aug. 5, making her age 94 years, 6 months and 4 days. She was the third of 11 children and the last of her generation. She was reared in Half Moon valley and married John H. Farber, who lost his life in the Civil war. Her second husband was William H. Wike, who died 26 years ago in Phillipsburg. Funeral services were held in Altoona on Tuesday.

Homer J. Mehaffey Dead.

Homer J. Mehaffey, step-father of Clyde Dutrow, of Centre Hall, died unexpectedly on Saturday evening from indigestion at his home in Altoona. Deceased was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad and was assistant yardmaster in Altoona. He had been employed in the Altoona yard for thirty years. He was 58 years old.

Mrs. C. Burd Dead.

Unusually sad was the passing away of Beulah E., wife of C. Burd, tenant on the J. E. Harter farm near Coburn, last Thursday. She passed away after a week's illness from pneumonia and complications, leaving a baby boy one week old and ten other children who will sorely miss the care of a good and devoted mother. Born on the old Musser homestead, southeast of Aaronsburg, the deceased was a daughter of Emanuel and Elizabeth Musser, both deceased. She was 41 years, 11 months and 21 days old. She was well known in Penn's valley and held in highest esteem. Surviving are her husband; the baby boy; twin girls four years old and the following children at home: Catherine, Grace, John, Ray, William, James, Carrie and Madeline; one brother, Clayton E. Musser, of Centre Hall; and two sisters: Mrs. Seymour Winkleblech, of Aaronsburg, and Mrs. William Winkleblech, of near Coburn. The deceased was a member of the Lutheran church and her pastor, the Rev. Daubenspeck, had charge of the funeral service. Burial was made in the cemetery at Wolfe's Chapel.

Rev. T. Levan Bickel Dead.

Rev. Thomas Levan Bickel, aged 52 years, at one time pastor of the Reformed church in Bellefonte, died suddenly in a chair in a barber shop at Reading on Wednesday. He was pastor of Faith Reformed church at Reading.

Mrs. Mary E. Peck Dead.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Peck, widow of the late Solomon Peck, died at her home in Nittany on Monday, aged 85 years. Funeral services were held this morning.

THE STICKPIN PAVED THE WAY

By H. IRVING KING

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

ONCE upon a time there was a young man named Lancelot Griffin, and he was hard up, and he wanted to give a birthday present to his best girl. So Lancelot dug up an old scarfpin that he hadn't worn for years because he always hated the hideous thing. It had been presented to him by a great-aunt. It was a highly "hockable" affair. Lancelot obtained enough of the coin of the realm to buy a little gift with which to delight the heart of Flora Gamwell. Lancelot had a birthday a few months later. His dearly beloved Flora had her eye attracted—and held—by this very same stickpin in the pawnbroker's window. Flora bought the pin. She presented it to Lancelot with a pretty little speech.

"The beauty of the pin was what attracted me," said Flora. "It seems as if it was just meant for you—just as we are meant for each other, aren't we, Lancelot, dear?"

"You bet we are," replied Lancelot in his crude, coarse way, "and this pin shall never get out of my possession again—that is never—"

"Of course it won't," replied Flora. "You must wear it, always, for my sake."

"Oh, it is much too beautiful to wear every day," said the wily Lancelot.

"No," replied Flora firmly, "you must wear it constantly or I shall think you don't value it as my gift."

Now, this ancient aunt of Lancelot's lived in a far country; somewhere around Bogota, N. J., and seldom came to the big city. But Lancelot wrote her a very dutiful letter announcing his engagement to Flora and hoping that his esteemed relative's days would be long in the land. He received a highly edifying Mr. George-to-little-Rollo sort of a reply, closing with the announcement that Aunt Sophronia would arrive in New York the next week, and that he and Flora might call upon her at her hotel.

Now Lancelot was a lawyer's clerk at a modest salary, whose parents would never be able to leave him much money, and it was rather imprudent for Flora and him to become engaged. But they were young, and could wait. They would not be married until his prospects were a little brighter—which, of course, they would be soon. Lancelot had many schemes in mind for the acquirement of wealth. Given time and opportunity with the electrical inspiration of New York, and what is it that a young man has not a right to expect?

If Lancelot's parents had not been foolish enough to quarrel with Aunt Sophronia things might have been different. Lancelot would have been the old lady's heir. As it was, she had publicly announced her intention of leaving her money to a distant branch of the family in Schenectady and was known to have made a will accordingly.

Well, Aunt Sophronia arrived and Flora and Lancelot called upon her, Lancelot wearing the stickpin of destiny. He knew that Aunt Sophronia would recognize it and say something before Flora which would, as Henry James would say, "give the snap away." But there was no way out of it.

Flora had especially said, "Now don't forget to wear that beautiful pin I gave you," and if he did not do so she, Flora, would be sure to remark it and say something which would make for confusion. He faced the music; confident that it would be even louder than the pin itself.

The blow fell with its dull, sickening thud shortly after greetings with the aunt had been exchanged. "Why, Lance, dear!" cried the old lady, "you are still wearing my pin! How nice of you. So you have not forgotten your old aunt after all. Well, well, I am glad there is one member of your family possessed of common gratitude and affection." He could feel Flora's eyes boring through him as the old lady spoke. For the rest of the evening, whenever he caught Flora's eye, he caught a cold, stony stare. It made him nervous. The old lady kept them to dinner and sent them home in a taxi. In the taxi Flora said: "Now, sir, I would like an explanation."

"Of what?"

"That pin."

"If you must know, auntie gave it to me; I hocked it and bought you a birthday present," said Lancelot. Flora broke into a laugh. "Of course, dear boy. I met your aunt at Lake Hopateong last summer. We discussed you very thoroughly, and I gave such a flattering account of her nephew that, after swearing me to secrecy, she agreed to come on and see if the goods were as represented. She told me all about the pin, describing it minutely and wondering if you ever wore it. When I saw it in the pawnbroker's window I recognized it at once. Two such pins were never made in this world, wicked as it is. I guessed why you had pawned it, and wrote the story to Aunt Sophronia, who agreed to forgive you if I would make you wear the thing by way of penance until she met you again. She changed her will in your favor. Now what do you think of me?"

Whatever it was, he said it with kisses.

NERVOUS & HALF-SICK WOMEN

Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

These Three Letters Prove It

Lowell, Mass.—"I am sending you a few lines to let you know what good your medicine has done for me. I want you to let every one know that it has helped me in nervous troubles. I have four children and you know there is a lot to do where children are. They would come in from school and they would start telling me about their little troubles but I could not stand it. I had to send them away. I could not even walk on the street alone I was so nervous. I found one of your books and read it and then I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got it and had taken one bottle when I saw a change in myself. I was surprised. The children can talk all they want to now and it does not bother me. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOSEPH LEMERE, 24 South Street, Lowell, Mass.

Felt Like A New Woman

Springfield, Missouri—"For four or five months I was run-down, nervous, my back ached and I did not feel like doing a thing. Sometimes my legs ached and felt like they would break and I had a hurting in my sides. I had been reading in the newspapers the letters of other women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the advertising of it appealed to me so I bought some and saw results in almost no time. I had hardly been able to do my own work and after taking the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I recommend it to my friends who have troubles like I did, and hope they will find the same results."—Mrs. M. CARPENTER, 604 W. Chase Street, Springfield, Missouri.

40 Years Old, Feels Like 20

Hagerstown, Md.—"I was very bad off with backache, a bearing-down feeling in my body and a pain in my left side. I could not be on my feet at times and once I was so bad I walked bent over to one side for three weeks. My sister read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me a bottle. I got so much relief that I took more until I was well. I am 40 years old and feel like 20. I am sure this medicine will help all women."—Mrs. MARY E. SANDY, 436 W. Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent of these replies are "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. All druggists are having increased sales of this medicine.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

"More Important to Internal Cleanliness"

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only, at the expense of permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Some laxatives, according to an intestinal specialist, contain poisons which affect the stomach and intestines, resulting in grave disorders. Certain laxatives are a direct cause of piles.

Physicians Advise Lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

REHABILITATED MEN MAKE GOOD SHOWING

Vocational training of World war veterans has proved the most serious mistake in the care of the disabled by the government, according to Gen. John F. O'Ryan. Many of the veterans would have been better off if they had not been trained, he declared in an interview with a representative of the American Legion, upon his departure from Washington at the conclusion of a ten months' investigation of the veterans' bureau. The general said that this statement did not take into consideration any charges of negligence, extravagance or mismanagement, but considered only the system of rehabilitation used in caring for the men.

"I am firmly of the opinion," he said, "that there are a great many—of men in vocational training who would be better off if the government had never undertaken to re-educate them. By better off, I mean more able than they are now to cope with conditions and win economic independence."

"The government's vocational machinery never actually broke down; it never even started in the right way. Little attention was paid to getting the right men into the right course in 1920 and 1921. The whole thing was a travesty on the name of rehabilitation. Instead of teaching men to strike out and paddle their own canoes again, the tendency was to cultivate habitual pensioners."

"In 1922 when the federal board was merged with the veterans' bureau, things took a turn for the better and the situation has steadily improved. But the evil had been done. Instead of being taught to become independent and self-supporting, thousands of veterans had been schooled for two years in how to get a livelihood at public expense. It has been necessary to drop a good many men whose cases have become impossible. . . . I believe others will have to go. I cannot see how the bureau can turn out men as rehabilitated who obviously cannot make good."

Of the 70,000 men now receiving vocational training, about 2,000 a month are leaving the institutions as rehabilitated. Recent experience shows that approximately ninety-five per cent of these men are making good after their absorption into the business life of the nation.

Need $420 Annually for Each Child's Care

A contribution of approximately $420 annually for the care of each child at the American Legion Billett at Otter Lake, Mich., is necessary for the war veterans to carry on this important phase of the work, according to Dr. C. V. Spawr, department commander of the Legion in that state.

Cottages are soon to be built and the whole plant extended as rapidly as funds permit, according to department officials. It is not unlikely that this project will be adopted by the national organization as one of the regional homes anticipated in the national program for child welfare by the Legion.

The orphan's project is in addition to another unique work of the American Legion in Michigan, at Roosevelt Memorial hospital near Battle Creek, where scores of tuberculosis ex-service men are cared for at the expense of the Legion.

Recreational Program for City of Rome, Ga.

A recreational program for the whole city, sponsored and paid for by the Shanklin-Attaway post of the American Legion in Rome, Ga., has been put into effect. Under direction of a paid community worker, the plan will be extended to every person in Rome. This is a part of the outlined Americanization program of the veterans' organization, but is one of the first examples of city-wide work undertaken.

Casino Aix-Le-Bains

In order to make the doughboys feel at home, a replica of the famous casino at Aix-Le-Bains in France, where many soldiers spent their leave, was constructed by Wichita (Kan.) American Legion members for their annual ball. The big ballroom was effectively decorated and was peopled with "X" workers, canteen girls and other well known figures of leave-area days. Music was furnished by the local Legion band, which was a contender for prize money at the San Francisco convention of the American Legion.

Temple of Diana One of World's Seven Wonders

One of the seven wonders of the ancient world was the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, built in the Fourth century before Christ, and burned by the Goths in 262 A. D. But the temple was doomed to early destruction at the hands of a half-crazed Greek named Herostratus. In 356 B. C., on the night when Alexander the Great was born, he burned the temple to the ground. When he was arraigned for his crime, he said he had done it to make an immortal name for himself, and he had chosen the night Alexander was born because Diana was the goddess of childbirth, and he believed that she would be in Macedonia to bless the little prince's arrival.

A new temple, started in 350, became a storehouse for great gifts. In 262 A. D. invading Goths destroyed the city and burned the temple. Only a few of the columns escaped, and they were used in the mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople.—Detroit News.

Interesting Story About "Devil Bridge" in Wales

There are many "devil bridges" in Europe, and nearly all have legends to account for the name. One of the more picturesque of these satanic bridges is in Wales, at Aberystwyth.

The story, as told by an English writer, is that Megan Llandunach was one day at her wits' end to know how to bring her only cow across the chasm. The devil then appeared to her and offered to bridge the gorge if, in return, he might have the first living thing that crossed it. Megan agreed, and the devil, thinking the woman would be the first to pass, flung down his bridge. But Megan was no fool. Taking a crust from her pocket, she threw it to the other side of the gorge and sent her dog after it. The outwitted devil, so the story goes, took his defeat very sensibly and left his bridge there for future generations of the clever Welsh.—Detroit News.

An Amazing Fact

TO many people it may seem incredible that a habit so common as coffee-drinking can be harmful. Yet if your doctor were to enumerate the common causes of indigestion, headache, and run-down condition, he would be likely to mention coffee.

If you are troubled with insomnia, nervousness, or are inclined to be high-strung, try Postum in place of coffee for thirty days, and note the difference in the way you feel, and how much better you sleep.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage, absolutely free from caffeine, or any harmful drug.

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms. Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

ACADEMY BANQUET

Delightful Event in Honor of School Athletes.

That annual event which students of the Bellefonte Academy always look forward to with keen anticipation—the banquet in honor of the Bellefonte Academy athletes—was held last Thursday evening in the banquet hall at the Academy. Prof. James R. Hughes, headmaster of the school, was toastmaster and presided in his usual jolly, masterful style. The result was that he had everybody feeling at home and the occasion was most enjoyable to students and guests alike.

The school orchestra made music in the air and put pep into the affair, typical of the annual athletes' banquet. It was just 6:30 when the student body marched into the large hall, the guests already being at their places about the table. After grace was said by Rev. Frazier, Mr. Hughes invited all to proceed and full justice was done to the good things, the menu including fruit macedoine, roast chicken, mashed potatoes, celery, peas, scalloped oysters, olives, cold slaw, fancy cakes, maple walnut ice cream, bonbons, coffee and cigars.

Gilbert Welch, one of the popular players of the 1923 football team was called upon for a toast on "Were We In It?" and his response was splendid. He mentioned the victorious season, how the Pitt Freshmen were pitted out of luck, and of the only game lost, when the West Virginia Freshmen won on a sea of mud with several of the Academy mainstays out of line. Andy Cutler, track man, had a fine toast on "The Importance of One's Calling," and David Harper told of "Bass Ball Prospects" for the 1924 team. "The Best Team Ever" was covered by John (Juggy) Greene and then the coach, Carl G. Snively, spoke with much inspiration on "Athletics—A Help?" Mr. Snively brought out with force that athletics are a help when they serve to strengthen character but a hindrance if allowed to get an upper hold. "The Golden Days," was the topic of Jack Blecker. Rae Jones sang a beautiful solo, "The Sunshine of Your Smile." Other toasts by the students were "The Girls Forever," Joseph B. Lynch; "Bellefonte—An Ideal Location," John Hall; Minstrels—A Pleasure and a Profit," Rae Jones; "A School with a History," Wilson Gallagher; and then followed toasts by the invited speakers,—"Anything," by J. Kennedy Johnston, Esq.; "The Community with Us," Robert F. Hunter; "Happy Relations," Prof. Arthur H. Sloop; "The Academy's Business Proposition," Edward R. Owens, and "Loyalty," by Rev. William Downes. The address of Rev. Downes left a splendid impression.

The presentation of athletic diplomas was made by Mr. Hughes, after which Rev. Frazier spoke on "Character." Throughout the entire evening, delightful selections were played by the Academy orchestra. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Metzger.

There are students from the Academy in the several classes of thirty three American colleges and universities at the present time. The institutions they are attending are as follows:

Alfred University, New York; Amherst College, Mass.; Annapolis, Md.; Brown University, Conn.; Carnegie Tech., Penna.; Cincinnati University, O.; Clark University, N. Y.; Colgate University, N. Y.; Cornell University, N. Y.; Dartmouth University, N. H.; Georgetown University, District of Columbia; Gettysburg College, Penna.; Hamilton College, N. BASKET BALL

Local High School Team Shows Great Skill.

Winings of the local High School basket ball teams during the weekend were very encouraging. Each team won every game.

The unusually clever contest between the first boys' team and the strong Tyrone High School five was among the best ever played here. It was nip and tuck at all times. At the end of the game the score was tie—20—20. In the extra period Bellefonte scored one point and won—but it was close. Just after the whistle sounded, Tyrone shot a basket that would have given them the victory by a 21—20 score. The play was only a second too late. It indicated, however, just what had been going on during the entire contest, a game that held interest keenly in every play.

The High School girls team kept up their winning streak on Friday evening, taking a game from the Phillipsburg girls on the latter's floor, by a score of 18—7. The Phillipsburg girls had looked forward to the game with much interest and thought perhaps they might win from our unbeaten locals. The score indicates what occurred.

The High School girls anticipate one of the most promising contests of their schedule on Friday evening on the Bellefonte "Y" floor, their opponents being the Lock Haven High School girls. On Saturday evening they will play the Spring Mills girls on the local "Y" floor.

The High School second boys' team defeated Millersburg High School, 40—21, in the local M. M. C. A. on Friday evening.

The Bellefonte High School boys' first team will play the clever Hollidaysburg High, at the latter place, on Friday evening, and the Juniata team, at Juniata, on Saturday evening.

The Bellefonte Academy quintet was defeated by the Dickinson Seminary five in Williamsport on Saturday evening, the score being 18—17. The Academy has an interesting contest scheduled for Saturday evening when the Indiana Normal School five will battle for honors on the armory floor in Bellefonte.

Sears—Sears.

Cassius Leland Sears and his wife, Mary Etel Sears, were re-married on Saturday in the Court House in Bellefonte. The young couple had been married in France about 6 years ago and have been residing in State College, where the groom has been a rehabilitation student. He found it necessary, in making application for compensation, to be re-married in this country. Rev. Wilson P. Ard, pastor of the Lutheran church, performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by Harry A. Rossman, register, and by the Misses Geraldine Bilger and Madeline Stover.

Yarnell—Bickel.

Nevin Orwig Yarnell, a son of Ex Sheriff and Mrs. George H. Yarnell, of Hecia Park, and Miss Sara Elizabeth Bickel, of Mill Hall, were united in marriage on Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage of the Reformed church, the pastor Rev. Ambrose M. Schmidt, performing the ceremony. Mr. Yarnell has been employed in Mill Hall for some time past and the happy couple will reside in that place.

Yost—Baldwin.

On Monday afternoon Warren Yost, of Lock Haven, and Miss Josephine Baldwin, of Bellefonte, were married at the Methodist parsonage by the Rev. E. E. McKelvey.

My First Day Out Since the Accident

STARTED for work eight weeks ago, stumbled, fell, broke an ankle; been home ever since, mending.

My AETNA ACCIDENT POLICY has kept me in funds, however. Paid me every month at the rate of $50 a week. Would have paid the hospital, too, had I gone there. Now that I'm out, I'll get $25 a week until I can go to work.

You're a wise man and ought to investigate this AETNA proposition. When you learn the AETNA people have paid over 128,000 claims, you wonder how you've gone so long without getting a hard jolt from Old Man Accident, don't you?

AETNA-IZE

Play safe. No man can afford to pay out for sickness or accident today what he can't get back tomorrow.
